WHAT IS A GICLÉE PRINT?

The word itself is French for “spray” or “spit”. The method of printing is the same as the ink jet printer hooked to your computer, only much bigger, and much more sophisticated and way much more expensive. Another name for Giclée prints is “Iris” which refers to the type of printer used. There are a number of manufacturers now, quite a lot of research has been done, and the inks that are used are archival and will last many years. I use several companies for my Giclée prints. The computer operator can manipulate the photograph in PhotoShop to arrive at the optimal color correction, and when both the operator and the artist are satisfied the result is printed on a large scale printer on either paper or canvas. Sometimes the same company will take the photograph, or even scan the work from an original painting. The original photograph has to be a very high resolution image for the Giclée print to work well.

Artists love this process because we can afford to have our work reproduced and our clients can order prints on a custom basis! If your space is only 20 inches tall and you want one of my paintings that is 30 x 48 I can provide you with a print that will be 12½ x 20. It can be mounted on stretchers and framed, or it can be printed on archival paper and matted and framed under glass.

These are beautiful reproductions. They are unconditionally guaranteed and if they don’t meet with your expectations a full refund will gladly be given. Canvas prints are so much like the original painting it takes close inspection to tell otherwise.

PAPER OR CANVAS? CUSTOM SIZES?

We can reproduce my Feeling Series in their original size on canvas. Technically we could do the same on paper, but it is impractical due to framing problems with larger size prints on paper so I have simply priced the prints at half their original size. Canvas prints look exactly like my original painting, while the prints on paper are quite lovely matted and framed under glass or plastic. Because of the nature of Giclee printing I can order special sizes for these prints, and invite you to call or email me with questions about custom orders.

FRAMING AND SHIPPING

Canvas prints should be mounted on wooden stretcher bars, light or medium weight should be strong enough. Large sizes should be braced in the back. You, or your framer, can do this with a staple gun and a little patience. Paper prints should be matted and mounted under glass or plastic.

It is very impractical for me to assemble these prints and then ship them, adding significantly to their cost. The prices shown for Giclee prints include shipping and handling. (In most cases they will be rolled and mailed in a mailing tube). Special crating and shipping will be quoted on an individual basis for the original paintings or prints that are mounted.

OTHER PAINTINGS ARE AVAILABLE. Please call to inquire.

Note: these prices are for the Feeling Series paintings specifically. However, any of my paintings may be made into a high quality Giclée print by special arrangement.

Digital Reproductions of my paintings are lower priced and may be ordered by special order or from the Re-production page of my website.
